

Garden Tulip

Tulipa gesneriana

Generated: 02-Dec-2025

The Garden Tulip is a bulbous perennial plant celebrated for its vibrant, cup- shaped flowers and springtime charm. Belonging to the genus Tulipa , it is native to Central Asia and Turkey and widely cultivated in gardens worldwide. Tulip flowers appear in a wide spectrum of colors, including red, yellow, pink, and purple, often blooming singly on sturdy stems. The plant has lance- shaped leaves and requires well-drained soil under full sunlight. Tulips are popular in ornamental gardening, floral bouquets, and horticultural exhibitions for their bold, cheerful appearance.
